Spill The Tea

“I’m still unsure what I want to do after graduating, any advice?”

Ed Latimore
@EdLatimore

Embarrassment is the cost of entry.

If you aren't willing to look like a foolish beginner, you'll never become a graceful master.

In the job market, Gen Z is cooked

Gen Z is staring down a rough labor market. Entry-level positions require years of experience, companies are laying off people en masse and AI is screening job applications. Will Gen Z be able to find work?

Learning Objectives

- Explain current employer expectations for CS grads and which skills are highest-priority.
- Map their technical & transferable skills to real job roles and gap-plan actionable next steps.

Employability

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8kXdgrjHpyM>

Why Employability Matters

Employers are shifting toward skills-based hiring:
Job ads / internal hiring increasingly emphasise specific skills and experience over formal credentials.

- The types of roles and skills in demand (esp. AI/data roles) are changing quickly.
- Graduates must show up-to-date + adaptable skills.

Big picture: a degree still matters for many roles, but employers increasingly want evidence (projects + proven outcomes + internships) that you can deliver

A NEW HIRING APPROACH

73% of employers used skills-based hiring last year, up from 56 percent in 2022.

The Top Employability Skills Employers Want

Hard skills

Specific competencies, skills, knowledge, and abilities needed to perform a specific task or role.

Hard skills include:

- Microsoft office
- Interpreting data
- Financial planning
- Copywriting
- Troubleshooting
- Project management
- Spoken language

Soft skills

Personality traits, social competencies and skills, knowledge, and abilities used to perform interpersonal activities and unique tasks.

Soft skills include:

- Communication skills
- Timekeeping
- Critical thinking
- Leaderships skills
- Motivation
- Ambition
- Negotiating

TOP 10 Most Important Hard Skills

as chosen by recruiters and hiring managers

TOP 10 Most Important Soft Skills

as chosen by recruiters and hiring managers

Technical Competencies: What to Show

- Foundations: Data structures, algorithms, complexity, system design basics (important for technical interviews & on-job problem solving).
- Modern toolset: At least one backend language (Python/Java/Go), web/dev stack (JS/HTML/CSS) if relevant, SQL/data fundamentals; familiarity with cloud basics (AWS/GCP/Azure) for many roles.
- Software engineering practices: Version control (Git), CI/CD basics, testing, code reviews - treat these as part of your skill evidence.

Transferable / “Soft” Skills That Move the Needle

- Communication (technical & non-technical): explaining trade-offs, writing clear README/design docs.
- Teamwork / collaboration: working in distributed teams, participating in code reviews.
- Problem solving & initiative: framing problems, proposing experiments, breaking ambiguous tasks into deliverables.
- Resilience & adaptability: coping with changing requirements and learning new tech fast.

Exclusive 30-sec Elevator Pitch Session

x5 Limited slots: Earn a spot to practice your elevator pitch.

An elevator pitch is a concise, persuasive speech designed to quickly introduce a product, service, idea, or yourself, typically within the time it takes to ride an elevator (around 30-60 seconds). It aims to grab the listener's attention and spark further interest, rather than providing a comprehensive explanation. 🔗

The Four-Step Elevator Pitch

1 Start by introducing yourself

"Hi, my name is Sara.
It's so nice to meet you!"

2 Provide a summary of what you do

"I'm a PR manager, specializing in overseeing successful initiative
launches from beginning to end."

3 Explain what you want

"I find the work your PR team does to be innovating and refreshing — I'd love
the opportunity to put my expertise to work for your company."

4 Finish with a call to action

"Would you mind if I set up a quick call next week for us to talk about any upcoming opportunities on your team?"

MBTI

(Myers—Briggs Type Indicator)

Personality Types

Using MBTI for Workplace Success

- Self-awareness: Understand your strengths & blind spots.
- Collaboration: Recognize that different colleagues process and communicate differently.
- Role fit: Some types may thrive in certain roles (e.g., detail-focused SJs in QA, big-picture NPs in R&D).
- Conflict resolution: Helps reframe disagreements as style differences, not personal attacks.

Common Mistakes & How to Avoid Them

- Inability to Articulate Skills
- Not Researching the Employer
- Overemphasis on Technical Skills Alone

Networking, Mentors & Communities

- Alumni & faculty contacts: reach out with concise asks (“30-minute chat to learn about X”).
- Tech meetups / hackathons / student societies: short, low-risk ways to meet hiring engineers.
- Open source & community contribution: Consider attending local events, university-hosted activities, and internships.

It features several decorative elements: a large, dark blue wavy shape on the left side; a pattern of light blue hexagons in the top right corner; and a series of white and light blue dots forming a wavy, ribbon-like shape in the bottom right corner. The text is centered in the middle of the slide.

Summary & Takeaways

Summary

Demonstrate a balanced skill set, blending technical expertise with essential soft skills such as teamwork, adaptability, and communication.

- Identify and articulate professional value by translating academic and project work into measurable business outcomes.
- Research and target employers strategically, tailoring applications and interactions to align with company culture and needs.
- Show evidence of continuous learning via certifications, personal projects, and contributions to open-source or professional communities.
- Plan long-term career growth, using structured goal setting, skill development plans, and mentorship.
